

DEMOCRACY SAUSAGE

MEDIA STATEMENT: 9 March 2017

Firing up for a sizzler of an election in Western Australia

The Democracy Sausage team has been hard at work cooking up the 2017 Western Australian State Election version of the website.

Sausage reporting is already running hot two days out from the election, with nearly a third of booths now having a 'sausage status'.

The site maps both booths with a sizzle, and those with the distressing 'no sausage here' status, to help users have the most delicious voting experience possible.

Senior sausage analyst, Annette Tyler, encourages voters to report in on their local booth on election day:

"You can contact us on Facebook, Twitter, or submit booth information directly via the democracysausage.org website. Our service wouldn't exist without all of the wonderful volunteers out in the field, snagging freshly-grilled data for the site".

In addition to the team's saucy reporting throughout the day, Democracy Sausage watchers can expect a wrap of key sausage statistics on election night. Enthusiasts can also look forward to a special edition #WAVotes commemorative t-shirt and sticker appearing in the Democracy Sausage shop after polls close.

The Democracy Sausage website has enjoyed a meaty increase in traffic since 'democracy sausage' was declared word of the year by the Australian National Dictionary Service in 2016.
